With the launch of new mayoral administration, DICE, LEARN@Henry Street, and the Workforce Development Center are excited to kick off a new Meet, Greet & Learn Series, bringing key city agencies and departments directly to your desk to share information and resources that may be helpful in your work with your participants.

We're starting with the NYC Department of Consumer and Worker Protection (DCWP) to help us stay informed and connected to the resources that may benefit our participants.

Resources & Topics Covered::

- Worker's Rights and the latest labor protections
- The city's new push to eliminate junk fees in travel, lodging, and entertainment
- How to access free financial counseling and tax preparation services offered through DCWP
- How to coach clients to recognize and avoid scams
- AND MORE
